Harold Barefoot Sanders Jr., a friend of the President, will stay in the Government—by appointment.

Pack 10/6/68

Some who obviously would be out in a Nixon Administration, and probably in a Humphrey one, are lucky enough to have been placed by the President in judicial posts or in regulatory agencies with long terms of office. The recent appointment to the U.S. Circuit Court of Harold Barefoot Sanders Jr., President Johnson's personal legislative counsel, was an act in the tradition of departing Chief Executives who try to take care of their friends.
